Crime and Punishment

by Fyodor Dostoevsky

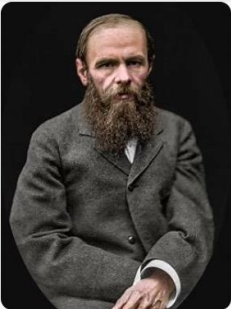

The plot centers around Raskolnikov's plan to murder a pawnbroker for her money. He believes this act is justifiable to escape poverty and use the stolen money for good deeds. But it's not the crime itself that's the focus of this book, but the aftermath of it. You'll find yourself inside Raskolnikov's conflicted mind, grappling with guilt, fear, and philosophical dilemmas, exploring the darkest corners of the human psyche and society

Fyodor Dostoevsky

Fyodor Dostoevsky The Master of Psychological Depth and Human Complexity Fyodor Dostoevsky (1821–1881) was a Russian novelist, philosopher, and one of the most profound literary figures in history. His works explore the depths of the human soul, grappling with themes of morality, faith, free will, and redemption. Best known for masterpieces such as "Crime and Punishment," "The Brothers Karamazov," "The Idiot," and "The Brothers Karamazov," Dostoevsky's novels delve into the psychology of his characters, portraying their inner struggles with guilt, redemption, and existential questions. His writing captures the raw emotions and contradictions of human nature, making him a cornerstone of world literature. Dostoevsky's stories remain as relevant today as they were in the 19th century, inspiring generations with their deep philosophical inquiries, rich character studies, and profound social commentary. "The soul is healed by being with children." – Fyodor Dostoevsky
